

Sheelagh Drudy Deputy Chairperson	Sheelagh is Emeritus Professor of Education at University College Dublin and former Head of the UCD School of Education. She studied at University College Galway and obtained her doctorate from the University of Cambridge. She was Chair of the Task Force on Autism 2000/2002. She has researched and published numerous books and peer-reviewed papers on education including the sociology of education, gender, class, teacher education and inclusion. Her books include: Men and the Classroom: Gender Imbalances in Teaching, London and New York: RoutledgeFalmer, 2005 (co-authored with M. Martin, M. Woods and J.O'Flynn); Educational Provision and Support for Persons with Autistic Spectrum Disorders: the Report of the Task Force on Autism, Dublin: The Stationery Office, (Co-authored with Expert Group, 2002); Schools and Society in Ireland, (co-authored with K. Lynch), Dublin: Gill and Macmillan, 1993. Her most recent book in which she is both Editor and contributor is: Education in Ireland: Challenge and Change, Dublin: Gill and Macmillan, 2009. She has published papers on inclusive education in international peer-reviewed journals. She is a former member of the Teaching Council of Ireland and currently chairs review panels on programmes of initial teacher education for the Council. She is an External Examiner in a number of institutes of higher education and has acted as External Examiner for a variety of PhDs, including the area of inclusion. She is a reviewer for a number of peer-reviewed journals. She is the parent of a child with an intellectual disability.
--	---