

Bubble Games

From a bubble wand to a bubble machine, all children love to watch and pop bubbles. You can do this standing up, sitting or lying down at home or in an outdoor space. Bubbles are a great sensory experience.

The following are examples of some bubble games that can be tried at home:

1. Bubble Hands

Use regular hand soap/liquid soap and water. Carefully blow bubbles. The player who blows the biggest bubble with their hands wins

2. Hula Hoop Bubble Blow

This game involves using bubble solution, hula hoops and hands. One player from each team of two stands at the finish line, dips their hands in bubble solution and then blows bubbles through their hands from the finish line, while their teammate runs from the start line using a hula hoop to catch the bubbles. The team catching the most bubbles wins!

3. Hula Hoop Bubble Wand

This game involves filling the bottom of a sand pit with bubble solution. Stand one child into the solution, placing a hula hoop over them (optional). Dip the hula hoop in the bubble solution and slowly lift the hula hoop to form a large bubble!

4. Bubble Tool Pop

This game involves using tools such as tongs, clothespins or chopsticks. One player from each team stands a few feet from their teammate and blows bubbles, while their teammate pops them with the tool. The team popping the most bubbles wins

5. Bubble Pop Count

This game involves using bubbles and a dry concrete surface. Each child blows bubbles toward the ground, counting them as they pop. The first bubble blower to 25 pops wins (can differentiate to a lower number if required). Parents can help children learn about counting by asking children if each batch of bubbles popped is more or less than the previous batch.

6. Bubble Hide-and-Seek

Play hide-and-seek using straws in buckets of bubble solution. The player chosen to be "it" counts to 25 while the other players hide. The seeker uses a straw to blow bubbles to tag the hiders. Once tagged, the hiders join the seeker finding the others, blowing bubbles with their own straws. Last person to be tagged wins

7. Bubble Catch

Play in teams of two with a pan of bubble solution and differently sized slotted spoons. One teammate blows bubbles through a slotted spoon, while the other catches them. The team that catches the most bubbles wins

Bubble games let children enjoy bubbles while learning valuable social skills and working as a team. Ready, steady, play!
